IS IT WORTH IT?

SEEK THE MAN
WANTED—MORE MONEY

RICHARD B. SHERIDAN was one of the most brilliant young men at West Point. He "made" the Army football team in spite of his youth and light weight, played in the Yale-Army game last Saturday, broke his spinal column and died shortly after his mother reached his bedside yesterday.

Are all the football games, the college glory, the gate receipts worth that life?

It is for fathers and mothers and school authorities to answer that.

THE WALRUS and the carpenter invited the little oysters to "a pleasant walk, a pleasant talk along the briny beach." They had it and of those little oysters only the shells were left when the walk ended.

President Hoover and Premier Laval have had their pleasant walk and pleasant talk.

From London and Berlin comes information that those two nationalities, observing the Hoover-Laval pleasant walk and pleasant talk, feel that they, Britain and Germany, have played the part of the little oysters.

Germans expect nothing but trouble, they are used to it.

But the British are hurt. They feel that their "prestige in Europe has suffered. Only a little while ago they were financing France in the war.

IN CALIFORNIA, a woman confesses that she killed two other women and packed their bodies in trunks. You are not surprised to hear of a "man" in the case. "Seek the man" in crimes of violence committed by women.

It was known long before Kipling that a woman enraged is more dangerous than a man, and known long before the Duchesse de Boillon plotted the destruction of the beautiful actress Adrienne Lecouvreur. The duchesse thought that with Adrienne gone the handsome Maurice de Saxe would love her. As a matter of fact he didn't particularly love either of them at that time.

The western crime is horrible, but to execute the woman would be more horrible. Every doctor knows that if such a crime were committed deliberately, the woman was insane at the time.

THOSE RECENTLY selling silver metal short on the metal exchange, are again advised to get out of that "position." They should read what Mr. Rene Leon had to say about silver yesterday, in Cyrus H. K. Curtis's newspapers. "Ninety per cent of the world's population is off the gold standard and functioning on highly fluctuating currencies."

"Repudiation is the order of the day, as evidenced by abundance of moratoria, and suspension of gold payments by a majority of nations."

France and America can't play "the game of the gold standard alone like solitaire."

Rene Leon suggests "legislation making possible the discharge of allied debts contracted in gold, by payment, part in gold and part in silver at some reasonable ratio."

CANDIDATES IN BALLOT BATTLES IN FINAL DRIVE

Election Board Prepares For Voting In County Next Tuesday

SUPPLIES TO BE ISSUED SATURDAY

Old Problems, Many New Ones, Appear in Campaigns In State

Candidates in 12 cities and villages, 18 townships and 34 school districts were on the last laps of their campaigns today as the election board and its aids in political sub-divisions of the county oiled machinery for balloting Tuesday, Nov. 3.

The Columbiana county board of elections has issued formal calls to 660 workers in the county's 110 precincts, including 84 in the Salem and Perry township districts.

A total of 78 clerks and judges will be on duty in the 13 precincts of the city while six will handle votes of the township precinct, which will be cast at the trustees' office in South Broadway.

Presiding judges were notified today to report at the court house in Lisbon Saturday at 9 a. m. to receive supplies.

MANAGER FIGHT IS ON

Old Cleveland Battle Renewed for 8th Time in 19 Years

(By Associated Press) CLEVELAND, Oct. 27.—Most of the old political issues and some new ones developing from the depression are providing campaign fodder for Ohio's electorate.

Issues involving municipal ownership, corruption, unemployment, public extravagance and the city manager form of government are clearly drawn in a number of cities.

The city manager fight is on again in Cleveland for the eighth time in 19 years, with those opposed to that form of government seeking a return to the old mayorward plan.

A personal battle between former City Manager William R. Hopkins and Maurice Maschke, whose Republican majority in the city council ousted Hopkins two years ago, is stealing the show, however. Hopkins is now asking election to the council.

Down at the other end of the state, Cincinnati's charter party once more is battling to hold control of the council from the regular Republicans. The charter party, made up of independent Republicans and Democrats, is charged with and denies extravagance in government.

Third Witter-Curtis Battle * Canton is watching the third race for mayor between Herman R. Witter, Democratic incumbent and former Mayor C. C. Curtis, Republican, who in his second term was removed by former Governor A. V. Donahoe on charges of malfeasance, misfeasance and nonfeasance. Curtis lost a "vindictive" campaign two years ago.

"General" Jacob Coxey is again in the picture at Massillon, running on the Republican ticket for mayor. Thirty seven years ago he led his famous "army" of the unemployed to Washington. Now at 77, he proposed to help the unemployed by having the city float a $200,000 non-interest-bearing bond issue in small denominations.

Municipal ownership of light and power transmission is the issue at Warren. City ownership of the lines of the Ohio Public Service company is advocated by Mayor Wallace A. Lynn, Democrat, who seeks reelection. His opponent, Willard S. Eatwell, Republican, is against municipal ownership and in addition argues that the city's finances can't stand the purchase.

Lorain Campaign Warm

Lorain county has a warm campaign with more than 500 candidates running for various offices. The issues run the gamut of unemployment, personalities, changing tax laws and depletion of public funds.

The old light concerning Sunday motion pictures has bobbed up at Wooster and East Liverpool. At Marietta, John W. Gray, Democrat, 87, hopes voters will accept his argument that a man's age has nothing to do with his ability and elect him mayor. Mayor E. A. Steadman is his Republican opponent.

Mansfield voters again will choose between Charles S. Moore, Republican, and Charles M. Lantz, Democrat, for mayor. Two years ago they picked Moore.

Lisbon Woman Hurt

Miss Anna Myers, 58, of Lisbon, is in the Salem City hospital suffering from a fracture to her right hip.

Miss Myers sustained the injury when she fell down the back steps at her home last evening. She was brought to the hospital following the accident.

Aid Rockne Fund

SPRINGFIELD, O., Oct. 27.—A portion of Wittenberg college's share of the receipts from the Marshall game here Nov. 14, will be given to the Knute Rockne memorial fund, athletic officials announced.

Guest of W. R. C.

Mrs. Ruth Hanson, of Columbus, state president, is a guest at the district convention of the Woman's Relief Corps in session in Salem today at the Knights of Pythias hall, North Broadway. Approximately 100 women attended the morning session. Mrs. Dora Bentley of Salem, president of the district, is in charge. Officers were elected at this afternoon's meeting.

BRITISH VOTE CAMPAIGN ENDS; BALLOT TODAY

Nationals Favored

The consensus of political observers was that the national government would win, with a majority of up to 200 in the house of commons, which would be ample to satisfy Prime Minister MacDonald's "doctor's mandate" request.

CADETS' 11 WILL FINISH GRID CARD

(By Associated Press) WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 27.—Major General William R. Smith, commandant of the military academy, today announced the Army football team would play out its schedule for this year despite the death of Cadet Richard B. ## Golden Bell and Travelers Clubs Plant American Elms

Commemorate Washington Bi-Centennial; Trees Are Gift of Mrs. William Silver, at Whose Home Ceremonies Are Staged

Two American elm trees were planted on the lawn at the home of the donor, Mrs. William Silver, Franklin st., Monday afternoon in commemoration of the Washington bi-centennial, which begins next February, honoring two clubs of the city, the Salem Golden Bell Garden club, civic organization, and the Travelers club, Salem's oldest literary club.

The tree planting was in connection with a meeting of the Garden club at the Silver home.

Donor Is Thanked

The Garden club tree was planted first and was accepted from Mrs. Silver by Mrs. W. E. Bunn president of the club, who in thanks to Mrs. Silver said: "As the tree grows and reaches out its leafy arms as if in prayer, may the members of the Garden club lift up their voice to God, who only can make a tree.

Second Tree Planted

The tree for the Travelers club was planted on the other side of the lawn. Miss Eugenia Sulist, president of the Travelers club, received the tree for the club presented by Mrs. Silver. A bottle containing the names of the officers of the Travelers club, date of its organization and the date upon which the tree was given, was planted with this tree. Mary Alice Bunn put on the last shovel of soil.

"America the Beautiful" was sung and a group of Seventh grade girls under the direction of Miss Orr, sang "Trees." Rev. R. D. Walter offered prayer and Rev. S. A. Mayer gave the benediction.

At the meeting of the Garden club preceding the planting ceremonies, Mrs. Frank Harris read a paper on "Fall Gardening" and questions to gardening were discussed by various members.

Refreshments were served just before the guests separated. About 100 persons were in the company.

TWO MEN, TALKING.

It was easy for the United States and France to expect too much from the conversations between President Hoover and Premier Laval. If face-to-face conversations between the men who lead nations were more common, the present tendency to exaggerate their occasional personal contacts would be lessened. There is no reason why the relationship of statesmen should not become as direct as the relationship of business men has become, before much longer, by increasing use of the advantages of rapid transportation.

That, however, is a possibility of tomorrow. Today, the fact that the head of the French government has crossed the Atlantic to talk with the head of the United States government is viewed as sensationally important. And indeed it is, viewed from the standpoint of encouraging development in international relations. Two men, talking over the interests and problems of the millions of people whom they lead, is as much a symbol of the modern era as the airplane or the emancipation of women.

There is nothing in the text of the statement given out by President Hoover or Premier Laval that is exciting. Its most important passage, to Americans, is that pertaining to intergovernmental obligations, in which announcement is made that both the United States and France recognize that debt revision is an imminent possibility. The statement's greatest significance, in the long view, is that the United States and France, each the most powerful nation of its continent, have compared their views of world problems. As far as action is concerned, President Hoover and Premier Laval have no power to bind their governments than a pair of political sages in a cigar store. They are the instruments of the modern type of government that withholds dangerous power from individuals, isolationists, of which there are great numbers in both the United States and France, have nothing to fear. Their opinions will be heard before action is taken.

Within the last two years, the heads of the two most powerful governments in Europe have come to Washington to talk with President Hoover. If it were possible to stand off far enough to get the right perspective, there probably would be little question that this nation's international position is a desirable one.

The people have enjoyed Premier Laval's visit. He has convinced them of his sincerity. He has caused many of them to understand that, though the French position in certain matters is irreconcilable with the position of this nation, France is sincerely trying to secure the peace for which the United States, also, is working. Two men, talking over problems in Washington, have caused many men to start thinking about the same problems. They feel, and they expect time will prove them to have been right, that France and the United States will understand each other better as the result of Premier Laval's visit.

What Others Say

SETTING AN EXAMPLE
While the metropolitan counties of Ohio were being denied by the legislature an opportunity to centralize and economize in local government, the people in and on the outskirts of Atlanta were allowed to eliminate two sets of unnecessary officials. The consolidation of three Georgia counties, one the county of Fulton, in which Atlanta is situated, has just been effected.

The two counties absorbed into the larger division had a combined population of less than 20,000 yet each had its full complement of public officials performing duties which overlapped, to an extent, the larger work of the administration of Fulton county. They are out and the taxpayers will save many thousands of dollars a year which have been paid as salaries and for unnecessarily duplicated machinery of government. Now that it has started, it is likely that consolidation of Georgia counties will occur frequently, as the state has 150 counties left, most of them small and sparsely populated.

Georgia has set a sensible example, which will greatly favor the harmonious development of its growing metropolis. Ohio's large counties did not ask that county lines be eliminated in order to consolidate government in metropolitan areas; they asked only that counties be permitted, if they desired, to centralize administrative authority and to eliminate a few of the many extra offices, boards and commissions that fall over each other in trying to do the same work in the same territory.

Atlanta's victory proves that the thing can be done. Eventually the obstacles raised by petty office-holders and those who hope to hold office will be broken down in Ohio and we will have a local government scheme based on efficiency and economy—Cincinnati Enquirer.

SORE THROAT

There's a world of winter comfort in Bayer Aspirin tablets. If you take them only to break-up colds, you know only half the story. Three tablets crushed in a little water will relieve the sorest throat with one good gargle. That's what the specialists use in cases of sore throat. That's what you ought to use at home—every time you want throat comfort and protection from infection. Remember, every case of tonsillitis began with just a sore throat! Don't neglect any sore throat. Gargle with Bayer Aspirin at the first tickling felt. Take a couple of tablets for that headache that comes with a cold—for neuralgia, neuritis, or similar pain. If it's genuine Bayer, it can't hurt the heart.

BAYER ASPIRIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 27—The stage "stooge" is finding a shorter cut to theatrical recognition than the understudy. The origin of the term "stooge" is obscure but is believed to have come from burlesque. The "stooge" is a sort of dead-panned fool for a comedian.

Three other Fay's "stooges" have become recognized harlequins in various revues. Perhaps the first to give this form of entertainer a break was Phil Baker. In the beginning the "stooge" interrupted Baker from a box.

It developed into a cross fire pattern in which the "stooge" was given the very best of the gags—always in the form of ridicule for Baker. The original Baker "stooge" left him to become a high salaried gagster in Hollywood. His present "stooge" Mr. Muldowney has received many offers.

Ted Healy gave rowdy impetus to the calling by featuring a dozen of them in a vaudeville act. Recently Lou Holz employed a gloriously hilarious "stooge" with an idiotic grin for his sensational Palace engagement. He remained, after Holz left, in other acts for several weeks.

Most "stooges," I am told, were picked up on the sidewalks of New York. They were street gamins who danced and clowned for pitched pennies. In old days on the Bowery they were known as "bushers" and filled ranks of burlesque shows.

There is a clumsy Chaplinesque witfulness about the "stooge" that rarely fails to catch the audience. He is one of those dead-panned pookish souls upon whom life is ever playing a prank. The trick of the appeal perhaps is that in real life most of us are "stooges."

He is a dear old and monumentally tedious gentleman often at New York functions of importance rushing about to bestow quick little handshakes and fluttery compliments. To me there is pathos in his efforts to be noticed just a little—perhaps to ripple the waters of life without making a splash. He was at a gathering last night, trying as usual to be merry and indulge brightly colored acts of grace but I noticed he slipped away early bearing an expression of disappointment. And it's a commentary on manners of the day that as he departed a gin swigging lady observed: "I hope he misses a couple of steps on his way out."

Reri, highly presaged South Sea Island beauty, failed to click in the Follies with her torso-flicking dances and was removed from the cast. She came on the avalanche of praise following her success in the star role of her Tahitian picture, "Tabu." As legends had it, she had many Polynesian lovers and is reputed to have hopped up the pulse of one of the rich playboys of Broadway. But to audience, her sensuous dancing was stale parsnips.

Reri and members of her brown-skinned entourage—including a toothless beetle - nut - eating old crone who had been her nurse—occupied a flat over a drug store on Sixth avenue near the theatre where she played. I saw her softly silhouetted at her window one evening after her dismissal, her chin cupped in hand and looking upon the line of motor cars edging up to the brilliantly lit marquee of the theatre where she expected to triumph. I could not but wonder if she were dreaming of moon kissed Tahitian nights and its lazy charm in contrast to the quick motor jangle of the strange new civilization she gazed upon.

This is not a first flop of real native dancers from outer rims of the world. On the other hand, the shimmying Daidino—reported born in Munee, Ind.—was a sweeping success as was later day Gilda Gray who began her rhythmic rum-bum-bum-bum in Chicago honky-tonks.

The Stars Say

The sidereal operations holding critical sway over mundane matters on this day are to be read as ad-verse, with many annoying, disturbing and precarious angles to the fortunes and peace of mind. There is a danger of an unprofitable handling of finances, possibly through rash speculation as well as other unwise use of funds in loans or hazardous investments. Likewise there may be open as well as furtive and sinister opposition or hostility, provoked probably by a personal tendency to contentions and violent reactions to trying affairs. Be calm.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of adverse conditions, with finances in peril through speculation, loans or rash investments. Also a personal indulgence in quarrels, impulsive and violent conduct may inspire or provoke subtle enmity as well as open opposition. Elderly persons may have surprising and friendly adventures. A child born on this day may be rash, impulsive, intemperate in conduct and speech yet may enjoy a degree of popularity.

Air Bathing

Sun-bathing is popular all over the world. From the most famous beaches to the ordinary backyard, this practice has received the endorsement of young and old.

The value of sunlight as a means of combating disease is appreciated by all. Certain foods are now manufactured which have been exposed to the sun. For this reason they are believed to be more valuable.

A good suntan improves the appearance. It gives its possessor a healthy and rugged appearance, and a feeling of well being.

Lately, great emphasis has been placed on the importance of air baths. I hope the popularity of air baths will come to equal that of sun baths. This is particularly important in the winter, when it is often not convenient to obtain the beneficial rays of the sun.

Air baths are of great advantage in that they tone up the texture of the skin. The skin is one of the most important parts of the body, yet its importance is often disregarded. By means of the skin the temperature of the body is maintained. In addition, the skin, like the kidney and the bowel, serves as an organ to carry away waste.

When the skin comes in contact with the air, beneficial changes occur. The skin is given a chance to function as Nature intended.

As a result of modern civilization and our modern clothing, we close and seal the skin. This danger is particularly great in winter when most individuals are afraid of cold. Those who live out-of-doors and in the open air are less susceptible to colds and infections than those who are confined indoors.

By means of the air bath, the whole body is given an opportunity to come in contact with the air. It permits ventilation of the pores of the skin.

Air baths should be taken in the morning, beginning with short time exposure. Please remember that cold air is like cold water—it is not beneficial when the exposure is sudden and prolonged.

Air baths are usually given indoors, although they are of greatest benefit when done in the open. The baths should be taken in a moderately cool, well ventilated room. It is best that this room be adjacent to a warm dressing room. The first air bath should be taken with only half the body exposed. As the body becomes accustomed to the cool air, more clothing can be removed.

The bathing process begins gradually, the exposure being short at first and gradually lengthened. This bath should never be given to feeble or elderly individuals, nor to a child who has never been accustomed to cold air. The air bath may be taken immediately after a cool tub bath. If this is done, it is wise to see that the body has been thoroughly dried.

Make sure that there are no drafts or undue exposure to cold.

Upset Not Serious If Bowels Get This Help

When you're out-of-sorts, head-achy, dizzy, bilious, with coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or energy—don't worry. It's probably constipation.

Take a candy Cascaret tonight and see how quickly your trouble clears up. No more headache; no gas on stomach or bowels. Appetite improves; digestion is encouraged. Take another tomorrow night and the next night. Get every bit of the souring waste out of your system. Then see how bowel action is regular and complete.

Cascarets are made from cascara, which doctors agree actually strengthens bowel muscles. Ten cents at all drug stores. Adv

SYNOPSIS

While the newsboys shouted, "All about the big gang killing," Fanchon Meredith and a man named Tony planned their getaway. Tony gives Fanchon $4,000 and reserves passage for her under the name of "Miss Smith" on an airplane chartered by the wealthy Mr. Eames en route to New York. A fellow passenger, whom she had previously met on the boat coming from Hawaii, recognized Fanchon. She is Evelyn Howard. Evelyn is going to live with the wealthy Mrs. Allison Carstairs, an aunt whom she had never seen. Fanchon envies Evelyn flying to happiness, while she is trying to escape because she was Tony's girl—Tony, who lied his way through life and whom she had innocently accepted on face value. Fanchon confides in Evelyn about her love for Tony. The police are searching for Fanchon, "The Mystery Woman." Fanchon asks Evelyn's aid in securing a position for her, but Evelyn becomes aloof. The plane crashes.

CHAPTER V

Afterwards, even at a time when she was harassed and harried by questions and urgencies, she was forced to confess she remembered very little of the period between the return to consciousness and her rescue. She remembered coming up out of bitter seas, smothering, choking. She opened her eyes aware of terror, aware of stinging pain. She was pressed in, she was hemmed down. A weight lay across her lower body. Hurtingly, she dragged herself free. The weight was—Evelyn Howard, lying prone, lying bloody across Fanchon's thighs. Fanchon remembered dimly pulling, hauling, dragging herself, and the inert weight of the other girl—free.

There were trees. Rough ground. No signs of a house. The storm was abating but the heavy rain still fell. The plane, a twisted mass of flung wreckage. Bodies. Carnage. Horror.

Fanchon got to her feet. She looked down at herself. In one

In Evelyn's bag there were money, letters, calling card—hand she clutched tightly, ironic incident, the pocket book with which Evelyn had entrusted her. Fanchon took a step forward. She was, save for a deep cut on her arm from the shattered window glass, save for the wrenchings and bruises and aches, perfectly and miraculously unhurt.

Evelyn? The girl's body remained where Fanchon, half unaware of what she did, had dragged it—lying at some distance from the plane. Fanchon tried to run to her, stumbled, fell from weakness and terror, rose and crawled painfully over on her knees. Evelyn's face was almost unrecognizable. Fanchon felt for one blood-stained wrist. Her own hand was, she thought, no pulse.

Somehow she got back to the others.... what was left of them. One searching sick glance told her there was nothing she could do, and very little that she could even recognize.

The gas, she thought dimly, might explode, the plane go up in flames. It was raining, perhaps that provided a factor of safety. She didn't know. She only knew that somehow she must get away, must escape.

She returned to Evelyn and half lifted, half dragged her body to a safer distance. She knew nothing of course, of that treacherous stealthy leakage in the gas tank which had crashed them, looking for a safe landing.

Trees. Hills, rolling. A leaden sky and the pouring rain. She was soaked to the skin.

She sat down beside Evelyn. Evelyn, she thought, dully, was dead. There would be for Evelyn no happy reunion in the East with the aunt she had never seen. No luxury, no breakfast in bed, no pretty clothes, no happy times.

Weakly, piteously, Fanchon began to cry. She felt something, something that was pity, that was sentiment at the waste of human life. Yet her sensation of emotion was dull. She was too stunned to feel anything acutely. She found herself wondering dimly about the pilot, Mac, they had called him. Was he married? Had he people who would care, who would beat their breasts and weep at this disaster which had overtaken him out of the skies he soared to conquer? Then she thought of the others.... the Eames party—a family wiped out.... gone without a trace, leaving nothing save the shattered envelope of their broken bodies.

She looked at Evelyn. Shuddered and locked away. Why, she thought, could it not have been herself? Evelyn had something to live for. Evelyn had been flying toward safety, toward protection. But she herself had nothing.... nothing. She had been flying toward uncertainty, certain only that she was trying to escape.

Evelyn's aunt would mourn, thought Fanchon. Yet she had never known this girl. Had never seen her; knew nothing of her beyond her own vague little description.... dark hair, blue eyes.... and a snap shot taken on board the steamer.

Taken with Fanchon. Would people have seen, would people have heard the great bird falling to its doom? Fanchon tried to remember? They had not, she thought, fallen from much altitude. The crash had come fairly close to the ground. But the trees—

It had been the merest chance that she, alone of eight people should have survived.

Her arm bled badly. She looked about her for a handkerchief. She had none. Her little handbag, her suitcase was somewhere in the wreckage. On the ground beside her lay Evelyn's pocketbook. She opened it, took out a handkerchief with Evelyn's name sewn upon it and picking up a little branch, broken off from the trees, flung by the wind, she made a very amateurish tourniquet to stop the flow of blood. Her arm ached; she felt numb, now, with the pressure on it.

In Evelyn's bag there were money.... letters.... calling cards.... there were small cabinet photographs of Fanchon judged, her dead parents. Idle she studied them, the pretty face of the woman, the lean, worn face of the man.

Why were she not dead in Evelyn's place?

Why were she not alive—in Evelyn's place?

The idea came to her slowly. It took time to permeate. She sat huddled by the unconscious body of the other girl, rain beating down upon her. Some distance away was the pitiful wreckage, the sights and terrors of death.

Fanchon was alone, alone with death, under the gray skies, under the merciless rain, alone in a little hollow of ground between small rolling hills, hemmed in by tall trees.

Mechanically she looked at her wrist watch. The crystal was shattered, the watch had stopped. She had not even its friendly ticking reminder of fleeting time, never to be retrieved, for companionship.

Money in Evelyn's bag.

Fanchon's own handbag was gone. Close to her golden skin, pinned to the little corset she wore was a large amount of the money which Tony had given her.

She had enough, even without the sun in the lost handbag to go on with, once she was rescued.

To go on, where....? and toward what?

She had to think of Tony now. Tony would hear of the plane crash. Tony might think her dead. But Tony would learn that "Miss Smith," alone of eight human souls, had survived the disaster.

If Miss Smith had died Tony could never find her again, never come to claim her. If "Miss Smith" had died the whole dreadful time of panic, the hunted days, would be forgotten, would be as if they had never existed.

Could not Miss Smith die?

She looked down at her arm, Evelyn Howard said the small black letters sewn neatly on the handkerchief, small black symbols, avenues of escape.

Evelyn was dark of hair, she had blue eyes—and her hair was dabbled now with a crimson stain, her eyes were closed.

Evelyn was twenty-four. Fanchon a scant two years younger. They were the same height, the same slender build although Fanchon's figure was beauty itself and Evelyn's passable only. But Fanchon's hair was dark and Fanchon's eyes were blue.

She thought rapidly, looking away from the other girl—

If I go to New York—as Evelyn.

Mrs. Carstairs does not know her niece. Could I play the part of—an imposter?

In that case, Miss Smith would die; and Evelyn Howard would live.

Tony would hear of Miss Smith's death....

She did not look very far into the pitfalls and dangers that would surround her. She was intent only on the present. On getting away—as Evelyn Howard....

After that, after a time of security, she might, she thought, disappear again.... escape once more... go perhaps far out of the country and begin life all over again.

How to train BABY'S BOWELS

Babies, bottle-fed or breast-fed, with any tendency to be constipated, would thrive if they received daily half a teaspoonful of this old family doctor's prescription for the bowels.

That is one sure way to train tiny bowels to healthy regularity. To avoid the fretfulness, vomiting, crying, failure to gain, and other ills of constipated babies.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is good for any baby. For this, you have the word of a famous doctor. Forty-seven years of practice taught him just what babies need to keep their little bowels active, regular; keep little bodies plump and healthy. For Dr. Caldwell specialized in the treatment of women and little ones. He attended over 3500 births without loss of one mother or baby.

MARKETS

STOCK MARKET IS HEAVY AGAIN

Losses of Point or Two Numerous; Trading Is Sluggish

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—The stock market was again heavy today. Losses of a point or two were numerous by the end of the first half hour. Trading remained sluggish. Shares off 1 to 2 points included U. S. Steel, American Telephone, American Can, National Biscuit, North American, New York Central, Standard Gas, Union Carbide, Underwood Elliott, and Westinghouse Electric. Santa Fe, after opening 1 1/2 points higher, reacted to show a loss of nearly a point. It was generally felt in Wall street that the U. S. Steel corporation directors would declare another quarterly dividend of $1 on the common at their meeting after the close of the market. Maintenance of the $4 annual rate, it was pointed out, would be a gesture of confidence, since their quarter earnings from operations alone are believed to have shown little for the preferred. Dispatches from London predicted a fair margin of victory for the National government in today's election. Sterling opened at $3.91, up 1/4 cent. Security loans of reporting federal reserve member banks have fallen below six billion dollars, the total which some bankers as much as a year ago felt was reasonable. The decline last week was $95,000,000. Investments dropped $73,000,000.

WHEREAS, said street car line and the rails aforesaid have been used and operated in recent years by the Youngstown & Ohio River Railroad; and
WHEREAS, Briggs & Turivas, Inc., has heretofore at Receiver's sale purchased all of the property and assets of the Youngstown & Ohio River Railroad for the purpose of dismantling and removing the same; and

LEGAL NOTICE
Notice is hereby given that the proposition to levy an additional tax, for school purposes, over and above the maximum allowed under the limitations of law, will be submitted to the electors of Butler Township School District, on occasion of the November 3, 1931 election.
Said extra tax is declared by the Board of Education of the said school district to be necessary, because by the exercise of all authority under limitations of law, the maximum that can be levied will be insufficient to pay the expenses of the schools of the said school district and it is expedient to levy additional taxes, by virtue of authority as made and provided by law, under such circumstances.
The question to be decided is whether or not a levy of not to exceed three mills, additional to that authorized under limitations of law, shall be made for school purposes, for a period not to exceed five years.

Our Friends, The Public
IN speaking of you we always use the term "our friends" . . . for we know you are just that.
By your confidence in us which has prompted your patronage, you have enabled us to expand by leaps and bounds . . . a privilege which is not accorded every organization.
In 1905 our business was small . . . we could greet each customer personally, shake his hand and inquire the state of his family's health and well being.
Altho our organization has grown in size (123 stores), hat same spirit of friendliness still lives and is expressed through the courtesy of our capable managers and salespeople . . . and by the continuance of our policy of fairness of price and untiring service.
Giving More and Getting More
IT is always noticeable . . . an organization that sows seeds of value and confidence in turn reaps a harvest of profit and good will.
Continued success can only be measured by the confidence we inspire through our dealings with you. Our greatest asset is not in our ledgers . . . it is what our customers think about us . . . our reputation.
Since the opening of our first small store in 1905 it has been our policy to give a little more in quality . . . in fairness of price . . . and in conscientious service. This policy enables us to not only gain the immediate profits of your patronage but the extra reward of added confidence which money cannot buy.

INJURY SUSTAINED IN FOOTBALL GAME FATAL TO ARMY PLAYER

THE DAY IN SPORTS

ROCKNE'S "LUCKY SHIRT" LOSE TO TECH IN 1926

THE NOTRE DAME — Carnegie Tech football game Saturday at South Bend, Ind., recalls the tale of the late Knute K. Rockne's "lucky shirt," one of the most interesting narratives centered about the great coach.

It dates from an October afternoon in 1925 when Rockne and his Ramblers invaded Pittsburgh to avenge two consecutive defeats sustained at the hands of the Tech Tartans. The first of the setbacks occurred in 1926, when Tech supplied the year's biggest upset by defeating the Rockne men, 19-0.

Lloyd Yoder, Salem, "Ski" Mefort of Lisbon, and Howard Harpster, Akron, were the stars in the victory for Tech, while a large group of Salem fans, including former Coach Wilbur Springer's undefeated 1926 Salem High team, looked on. Yoder was presented a watch by the Salem delegation after the game.

Rockne that year regarded his team as unbeatable, stayed away from the game to see Army and Navy clash at Chicago. He almost fainted when told of the result of the Pittsburgh game.

THE TEAMS did not meet in 1927 but in 1928 Tech invaded South Bend and ran roughshod over another strong Irish eleven to win, 27-7, in the first defeat sustained by Notre Dame on Cartier field in a quarter of a century.

Thus Rockne has an old score to settle with Carnegie gridders when Notre Dame played the Tartans at Pitt stadium in 1929.

On a shopping tour the morning of the game Mrs. Rockne purchased a shirt for Knute. He wore it for the first time that afternoon and Notre Dame won 7-0 and was convinced that it was his "lucky shirt." Knute insisted on donning the shirt at least once a week throughout the 1929 and 1930 seasons. Not only did Notre Dame beat Tech again in 1930, by a 21-6 score, but the Irish also won all other games in both seasons.

On one occasion, Knute's friends relate, Rockne picked up the wrong shirt, was making his way to the stadium and suddenly discovered it was not his lucky one. He at once turned back and changed to the other garment.

Undoubtedly Knute's "lucky shirt" will find its way into the Memorial Room of the million-dollar Rockne memorial fieldhouse at South Bend as one of the most interesting mementos of the late coach.

Close, Hard-Fought Duel Expected, Canton Will Play E. Liverpool

STRUTHERS SQUAD TO OPPOSE NILES

Series of Attractive Conflicts Booked In District this Weekend

Involved in a struggle for the Columbiana county football championship, Salem and Wellsville High teams, ranked among the leading elevens in the district, clash at Reilly athletic stadium at 8 p. m. Friday in the Northeastern Ohio section's most important gridiron battle.

Heads District Menu
The Salem-Wellsville duel carded as an added attraction to a Mardi Gras festival staged by the Salem Business Bureau, assisted by Charles H. Carey post No. 56 American Legion, is outstanding among a list of attractive contests scheduled in the district.

Wellsville, an all-veteran aggregation, has a record of four victories against one defeat, the same as that held by the Stoneham team. The invaders hold decisive decisions over Niles, Toronto, ex-Highs, Chester and were defeated by Campbell Memorial.

A close and hard-fought duel is expected. Wellsville, victorious in its campaign for the county basketball championship last season, hopes to add another title with a victory over the Quakers.

Four Straight Home Games
The contest is the first of four home games booked for Floyd Stone's eleven. Youngstown South plays here on Friday night, November 6, followed, on November 13, by Lisbon in another nocturnal engagement at Reilly stadium. The season ends with the annual Turkey day clash with Alliance here at 10 a. m. November 26.

East Palestine High, still without a victory after the disappointing defeat sustained last week against Leetonia, is destined to undergo another crushing Saturday when Van Hinn's eleven opposes Campbell Memorial at Campbell. Memorial's 31-7 victory over Struthers last week brought out great strength in the team and speaks ill for Palestine's chance of victory.

Leetonia Plays Warren
Niles High one of the tough ones in the district, opposes Struthers at Struthers while two weak ones, Canton McKinley and East Leetonia, are due for a collision at East Liverpool. Leetonia invades Warren for a night game Friday, the contest being scheduled by Coach Pierre Hill as a "rest" contest prior to his game with Massillon's strong eleven on November 6.

Massillon, however, faces a really tough opponent, playing the championship Steubenville team on the Stubbers' home field Friday night. Toronto and Chester, W. Va., meet at Toronto in another Friday night duel. Sebring plays at Boardman Saturday.

INDIANA GRIDDERS LOOK FOR VICTORY OVER OHIO ELEVEN

Big Ten Teams Meet Disaster In Intersectional Conflicts

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—The Western conference will be looking to Michigan and Iowa Saturday to pull it up even with the rest of the country in intersectional football.

Michigan Meets Princeton
In nine intersectional contests this season, Big Ten teams have lost five decisions, have won three and tied one. Iowa which has suffered two of the five defeats, appears about ready to win a game this week, with George Washington university of Washington, D. C., as its opponent, while Michigan, which seems to have recovered from its disappointing start, will be favored over Princeton's Tigers.

Iowa has been beaten by Pittsburgh and Texas A. & M., Ohio dropped a hair-raiser to Vanderbilt, Yale crushed Chicago, and Pennsylvania upset calculations by trouncing Wisconsin last week. Wisconsin previously had played a 7-7 draw with Alabama Poly.

On the other side of the ledger, Minnesota defeated Oklahoma Ag-

Purdue Battles Chicago
For the first time of the season Purdue expects to have all hands ready for action, and that means nothing but bad news for Chicago. This week the Maroons, ill-equipped to start with, suffered the loss of three linemen, leaving Amos Alonzo Stagg with almost no replacements.

Indiana's forces are so elated by their one-sided victory over Chicago last week, that hope is entertained for a triumph over Ohio State. The Hoosiers suffered no losses in man power, and playing at home are figuring on an upset. The Buckeyes, however, will be favored to give Indiana its first beating of the conference campaign.

COLUMBIANA HI TO CLASH WITH EAST PALESTINE
Columbiana, Oct. 27.—Columbiana's undefeated high school football team meets its greatest test Saturday afternoon at East Palestine, but has high hopes of continuing its most pleasing record to date.

The boys played their best game of the season last Saturday when they defeated Salineville 20-0. Although East Palestine has its weakest team in years, and has met defeat at the hands of both Lisbon and Leetonia by scores of 7-0, Coach Atkins and his boys know that their rivals to the east always are at their best when playing Columbiana.

Columbiana has defeated both Lisbon and Leetonia by close margins, and are naturally favored over East Palestine, but upsets are the order of the season, and next Saturday may be no exception. Only one touchdown has been scored on Columbiana this season, and Leetonia made that one. The locals have improved with each game, and if their coach is able to bring them into this final test in the proper mental and physical condition, victory may prove on the Red and White banner for the first time in many years of friendly rivalry between these teams.

ACADEMY WILL CONTINUE WITH GRID SCHEDULE

Richard B. Sheridan, Jr., Dies at West Point Monday Night

SUFFERS BROKEN NECK ON SATURDAY

West Point to "Carry On" And Play Out Season, Rites Wednesday

(By Associated Press)
WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 27.—Back to West Point today came Richard Brinsley Sheridan, Jr., to find a last resting place with some of America's most distinguished soldiers.

The 21-year-old Army football star and honor student died in New Haven hospital late yesterday of a broken neck suffered in the Yale game Saturday.

Rites Planned Wednesday
Funeral services will be held in the Catholic chapel tomorrow afternoon. Interment will follow in the West Point military cemetery where are buried General Winfield Scott, General George Custer, General Robert C. Anderson, who was in command of Fort Sumpter in 1861, General George W. Goethals, builder of the Panama canal, and many another famous military figures of the past.

At the request of Sheridan's mother, services both at the chapel and cemetery will be private. The corps of cadets and officers of the post will attend.

In the general grief that was felt at the academy over Sheridan's death among cadets and officers alike, there was no disposition to talk, or even think of what course the Army would pursue in regard to the games remaining on its 1931 football schedule.

Team To "Carry On"
But there was a distinct feeling the team would "carry on" and play out a schedule that calls for games against Colorado college, Louisiana State, Pittsburgh, Ursinus, Notre Dame and Navy. It was pointed out that Army has contractual obligations with these schools that hardly can be disregarded. In addition to the inconveniences done opponents, cancellation would involve about $1,000,000 in receipts of which $400,000, estimated receipts of the Navy game, would go to the relief of the unemployed. Final decision as to what course will be pursued rests in the hands of Major General William B. Smith, superintendent of the academy.

Twenty-two years ago the army cancelled its schedule after the death in the Harvard game of 1909 of Cadet Ben Byrne.

Sheridan, whose 149 pounds made him the lightest man on the Army squad, was a varsity end from the start of the present season and his work had been outstanding in the cadet's early games. Last season, the first in which he was eligible for the varsity, he worked his way from the scrubs to a starting post in several games.

Salem Tied With Barberton, Wooster For Lead In N.E.O. Big Ten Football Circuit

Salem, Wooster and Barberton football teams today shared first place in the Northeastern Ohio Big Ten association, each winning two victories in as many league contests. Barberton's powerful eleven, through its surprising 14-0 victory over Massillon, last year's champs, is conceded the edge in the titular race.

Ed Beck Eligible
Fears among Salem's fandom that Ed Beck, triple threat star, would be ineligible for the Wellsville game here Friday night, were eliminated through an announcement by school officials that the halfback, while failing in one subject, is passing in three others, qualifying him for the game this week.

Grimes Shares Scoring Honor
Six other Salem varsity stars, Jack Carpenter, John French, James Fisher, Norm Early, Ed Raymond and Merle Whitcomb, are all on the "danger line," in the same situation as Beck. All are "flunking" in one subject. Should any of them fail in one other of his four subjects he will automatically be declared ineligible.

Quakers Have Chance
The Quaker team, with one more league game ahead, has a great chance to at least tie for the championship but must defeat the strong

Big Ten league schools made a perfect record over the weekend winning four engagements against outside competition. The most outstanding one of these victories was Dover's 9-0 triumph over a previously undefeated Millersburg eleven. By piling up 61 points against Orrville, Wooster took first place as leading scorer. Wooster has now amassed 146 points while Dover ranks second with 121.

Salem booked Kenmore to fill an open date Saturday and hung up an easy 38 to 6 win. New Philadelphia played Newcomertown in the only night game and won easily 38 to 0. Alliance had an open date.

THEATER Attractions

"SUSAN LENOX, HER RISE AND FALL", starring Greta Garbo and Clark Gable opened today at the State theater.

The story concerns the Swedish girl's fight against overwhelming odds for a life of decency. Staying at the lodge with the young engineer, she falls in love. When he leaves to go to his home on business, intending to return and marry her, the girl is discovered by her uncle. Again she escapes, joining a cheap carnival troupe as a dancing girl. Here the engineer again finds her, but learning that she has become the mistress of the troupe's manager, he casts her aside. They meet again.

From this point the action of the story is carried to San Francisco and then to the island of Java, where the climax takes place.

The cast includes Jean Hersholt, John Miljan, Alan Hale, Hale Hamilton, Hilda Vaughn, Russell Simpson Cecil Cunningham and Ian Keith.

"HONOR OF THE FAMILY" with Bebe Daniels in the leading role is the attraction today at the Grand Theater.

Miss Daniels plays the part of the coquettish and daring Mlle. Laura companion and "nurse" to the aged and absurdly rich old Hungarian nobleman Paul Barony. Wooed by her amorous employer, Laura has her own secret affair with Tony, whose poverty is a drawback to marriage. Then comes the dashing young officer, Boris, nephew of the ancient M. Paul. Boris sees the danger of losing his uncle's millions to Laura—sets about freeing his relative from her. fights several duels in the doing, and ends by falling for her undoubted charms himself.

Warren William who plays the role of the dashing Captain Boris, is personable and able—reminding one in appearance of John Barrymore and possessing a quality of voice not unlike his.
